Once moved to the cloud, applications become more challenging to manage. Cloud app performance management and performance monitoring tools help identify bottlenecks and other performance metrics. Good tools can help determine if bottlenecks are isolated to the application itself or if there are system-wide issues with a particular provider. The most granular tools can even do a deep-dive into the app to see if individual processes, such as database queries, are running optimally. For this review, we tested four commercial products -- Exoprise CloudReady, AppNeta, ThousandEyes and Dynatrace. We focused mainly on ease of deployment, day-to-day management, overall features and cost. We did not focus much on network overhead, but this is certainly a consideration, especially where agents need to be deployed. 7 inconvenient truths about the hybrid work trend Automatically update apps: Settings > Applications > Appstore and turn Automatic Updates On. Manually update apps: Apps > the app you want to update (press three-horizontal-lined button on remote). Then More Info and Update. To upload sideloaded apps, you can use a third-party program like adbLink to connect your computer to your Fire Stick. The apps you use on your Fire TV Stick are always being improved upon by their developers—whether it's fixing bugs, or adding new features. To get the best experience from your apps, it's important to make sure all your apps are up to date. The easiest way to ensure you always have the latest version of your apps is by turning on automatic updates, but you can also manually update them. If you have sideloaded apps on your Fire TV, you can update them by using a third-party program on your computer that connects to your Fire TV. Turning on the automatic app update setting on your Fire TV means you won't have to manually update your apps. From your Fire TV's Home screen, select Settings (gear icon) to the far right of the horizontal menu. Select Applications. Select Appstore. Turn Automatic Updates On. If you don't have automatic updates turned on, follow these instructions for each individual app you want to update manually. From the Home screen, select Apps (three squares and a plus sign) to the far right of the horizontal menu. Highlight the app you want to update (don't select it). On your Fire TV remote, press the button with three horizontal lines on it. Select More Info. If an update is available, select Update beside the Open button. Sideloaded apps are apps you've downloaded from outside of Amazon's Appstore. Because they're unavailable from Amazon, you can't update them as easily as official apps. You can't update them as a third-party program on your computer and get around it. First, make sure your settings are configured properly on your Fire TV. From the Home screen, select Settings (gear icon) to the far right of the horizontal menu. Select My Fire TV. Select Developer Options. Turn On ADB Debugging and Apps from Unknown Sources. Press the back button (arrow) on your Fire TV remote. Select About. Select Network. Write down your IP address on a piece of paper. Visit the adbLink web page on a computer, which you'll use to link your Fire Stick to your computer. Scroll down the page to download and install adbLink for Windows, Mac, or Linux. Once installed, open adbLink and click New. Enter a Description like "Fire Stick" and your IP address in the Address field. Then click Save. Click the Select device dropdown and select the Fire Stick you just added, then click Connect. If the connection is successful, you'll see your connected device and connection status appear in the boxes at the top. Download the APK file for the app you want to update. Click Install APK to select the APK file from your computer and then click Yes to install it. Your app will be updated the next time you access it from your Fire TV. FAQ Do I need to update apps on Fire Stick? Yes. Apps may not work properly if they are not up-to-date. Most apps will update automatically by default. How do I check for updates on Fire Stick? To update your Fire Stick, go to Settings > Device > About > Check for System Update. After the update is downloaded, select Install System Update. How do I download apps on Fire Stick? To download new apps on your Fire Stick, select the Apps icon on the home screen, choose the app you want, and select Get. You can also search for apps from the home screen by pressing Left on the directional pad on your remote. Thanks for letting us know! Get the Latest Tech News Delivered Every Day Subscribe Tell us why! In today's tech age, it really pays to employ every tech tidbit available that may work in your favor. Today, the answer to every problem can be solved with this solution: "We've got an app for that!" Navigating the global unknowns is no exception to this rule. Traveling is always fun, but reducing the stresses through some good app choices can go a long way toward having the trip of a lifetime. After all, who doesn't want to spend less time managing messes and more time making memories? If you're like me, you hate to pack, and with airline restrictions on weight and number of bags, deciding what to bring certainly hasn't gotten easier. Therefore, it helps to have an app that makes this necessity a bit easier. Packing Pro can help you create a list of what to pack from scratch. Or, if you suffer from packers block, you can use a set packing template with categories for men, women, business trips, camping, and more. You can also create a collection of reminders to include things you often forget, such as socks or the often-abandoned phone charger. This app also reminds you to lock up valuables and buy travel insurance, which is a nice safety net should the unthinkable happen. ($2.99 for iPhone/iPad) 2) Mint When you finally decide on your dream vacation, you need to have a plan to fund it. Mint can help you create a budget to set aside money for travel and also help you track your spending while you see the world. Mint is also synonymous with privacy protection. Money can't be moved within the app and your data is protected by banking-level encryption. (Free for Android and iPhone/iPad) Apps To Be a Travel Pro: Airline apps are always a good investment, as staying updated on the fluid status of flight times and seat assignments is critical to maximize your travel effectiveness. FlightTrack Pro gives you airport terminal maps, gate numbers, and updated flight times so you always have the most current status on your airline adventure. This trusty app even looks at past historical data and can forecast delays for certain flight plans. It also utilizes SeatGuru's seat charts to show you the best seats for leg room and amenities. ($9.99 for Android, BlackBerry and iPhone/iPad) 4) Lookout Mobile Security Are you worried about losing your Android phone or your information on it? Then this app will give you the peace of mind you seek. Lookout regularly backs up the data on your phone and allows you access to it from the web. This little security gem also scans for malware to protect your data. And, in case you lose it, you can access an online tracking feature to find it quickly. Should your phone fall into the wrong hands, using the premium version ($2.99), you can remotely wipe your phone clean of all information to ensure your private data is kept safe. (Free for Android.) 5) TripIt This is the organizer's dream app! Forget dealing with messy itineraries, slips of paper everywhere, and random facts all smashed into your pockets. TripIt lets you put everything for your trip—hotels information, confirmation numbers, car rentals, dinner reservations, daily excursions, and flight information—in one convenient place. You can also access it online or export it to your calendar to help plan day-to-day activities. (Free for Android, BlackBerry, and iPhone/iPad) 6) Kayak Kayak is a way to put together multiple scenarios for your trip and chose the best one for your budget and preferences. You can easily filter through different price points from multiple airlines and companies and book hotel rooms, flights, and car rentals all in one place to craft your ideal getaway. You are also notified of price changes on flights you are considering. Kayak makes hotel selection more easy by providing descriptions, reviews, rates, and photos while directing you to the best site to book your stay. (Free for Android, BlackBerry, iPhone/iPad, and Window) 7) Spotify Need some tunes to stay entertained on the plane? This great music-streaming app allows you to create playlists for a database sporting 15 million songs. You can download your music to your phone to save for times you are offline for some in-flight entertainment. You can either pay a $10-per-month subscription fee or simply purchase track lists to your computer individually. (Free; for Android, iPhone/iPad, Palm and Windows.) 8) Kindle Need some reading material while you fly the friendly skies? You don't need to waste precious carry-on space with bulky books. Now, you can read any book from your PC from the e-book marketplace. To make your reading experience more personalized, you can highlight, change font size, page color, orientation, bookmark and look up definitions. This is a great app to bring an amazing e-book library right to your fingertips. (Free for Android, BlackBerry and iPhone/iPad) 9) Angry Birds If you have an addictive personality, this game can pull you in quickly. While blocking out the outside world for one of birds with anger management bent on rescuing their eggs before they become omelettes may not be the most productive use of vacation time, this is a great app to keep you sane if you get stuck waiting in line or on the tarmac. You really can kill two birds with one stone, or in this case, several piggies with one bird. (Free for Android and iPhone/iPad) Apps to Use On the Go: Do you want to stay in contact with friends by text, but have worries about roaming charges? This app eliminates the uncertainty. You can text your friends for free as long as you have a WiFi or 3G connection. You also don't have to remember phone numbers, since WhatsApp uses your address book to locate your friends easily. (99¢ for Android, BlackBerry and iPhone) Skype is a great tool for calling people, especially when outside the US, since you can talk and text through Skype accounts for free through WiFi or 3G. If you need to call a cell or land line phone, you can make calls for a very low long-distance rate through Skype's credit program. (Free for Android, BlackBerry and iPhone/iPad) You don't have to travel far in the world to learn that English isn't often the mother tongue. This app helps you to communicate with locals and translate your thoughts into their own language. Simply choose from English, Chinese, French, German, Japanese, Italian, and Spanish, speak into the mic, and then turn your phone to your new friend and the app will say and write your message so they can understand you. ($4.99 for iPhone) Another great translation app is Google Translate—an app that allows you to translate 58 languages in a very easy-to-use format. You can type or speak the phrases you want to translate and then, with a touch of a button, the language barrier becomes a non-issue. (Free for Android and iPhone/iPad) Confused by exchange rates? This app helps you figure out if you ordered snails or haggis, or if you are driving the wrong way down a one-way street. Simply take a picture of the printed unknown signage (handwriting won't work), and translate the text immediately. (Free to download, but $9.99 to purchase a translation pack for iPhone) While no one wants to think about encountering an emergency, it is always good to be prepared. This app locates your global position and then gives you access to local ambulances, police, and fire stations in 126 countries. If you are unable to see to dial the numbers, it even offers the option to shake the phone to make a life-saving call. (99¢ for iPhone) I'm sure you aren't expecting catastrophe, but emergencies are rarely scheduled events. This app offers step-by-step life-saving information, with images and videos, on how to assist in medical situations. You can also create a personal medical profile with medications, insurance information, and emergency contacts. You even have the option to add it to your phone as wall paper so first responders can easily see it. ($3.99 for Android and iPhone/iPad) Confused by exchange rates? If you are tired of doing conversion equations in your head, let this app solve your math headaches. The tool is up-to-date with more than 190 currencies and four metals. You can also enter bank rates easily. (Free for Android, BlackBerry, iPhone/iPad and Windows) Become a globe trotter with the inside scoop with this handy app that compiles hotels, flights, restaurants, and points of interest in ratings, reviews, and recommendations. Read real feedback from previous travelers, scan through photos, create your own experience, and then let your voice be heard for future followers to benefit. You can also book restaurant reservations through a partner app called OpenTable. (Free for Android, iPhone/iPad, Palm and Windows) 19) OpenTable Wondering where to go for dinner? This handy app allows you to search restaurants by location or name, filter results by price and cuisine, enter your diner party size, and reserve a table. You can also cancel reservations through the app if plans change. (Free for Android, BlackBerry, iPhone/iPad and Windows) If you don't want to drag along a bulky camera, Instagram for iPhone (or Lightbox for Android) makes your smart-phone pics look like you had a photojournalist document your trip. You can also play with filters to jazz up your pictures, and then upload them to sharing sites like Twitter, Facebook and Tumblr. (Free for iPhone/iPad)
