The aims of first aid

- Broadly, there are three main aims when administering first aid:
 - Preserve life
 - Prevent worsening of the condition (if possible)
 - Promote recovery
- For example, applying a plaster is preventing the condition (a cut) from worsening by stopping infection!

The disaster looks like this: "Sophie was hospitalized at least twice when she was five years old after she fell and struck her head (that was also when Mr. Forle activated her telepathy) and there was a severe allergic reaction at the age of nine, which doctors have never been able to identify. And since Arrival in the lost cities of Sophie, Sophie broke the record of injury, most of them were almost deadly, though fatal. It should be considered a mistake because they are a direct result of negotiations. More details, please read Sophie's medical records. Alicorns Gift: Sophie's unique telepathy allowed her to trace something that looked like an incredibly rare woman Alicorn; And because Sophie was able to communicate with the creature (Alicorn informed Sophie, that it was called Silveny), the Council decided to leave it to Sophie, and this allowed Sophie to discover Newslevin's ability to teleport. Ra also listened to swan instructions and led Silven's to one of the lacks of the black swans, where they could not follow and attack them. Silven's wing was broken during the attack, but Sophie used her teleport to get herself, Keefe Sence and Silven safely back to Havenfield. And Silven's morning healed completely, everyone was relieved. Later, Sophie persuaded his Newslenes to move to the temple to protect her News and connect her with the male species (Greyfell). And Sophie soon found out that she and News could communicate telepathically despite the distance, which turned out to be a very good thing. Not repeatedly tried to steal both Alicorns from the temple, and when Sophie learned that Newspapers were pregnant (which would certainly force her to capture her), she convinced the advice to release Allocorn in a safer way. No one knows where they are. He promised to be in contact with News and Grayfello regularly and provide detailed reports of their safety and health, but Silnes had difficulty maintaining Sophie. When he contacted her, Sophie began to ignore. In accidents: Sophie, who lives with people, was taken to hospital at least twice when she was five years old, a fall in the head and stroke (when Mr. Fumle was active telepathy) and at the age of nine, after a severe allergic reaction. Something thing, what doctors never define. (Matter was later described as a limbium that gave him a black swan). Since the loss of Sophie, most of them could be considered, most of them could be considered, most of them have made a record of almost deadly injuries. An error, because they are a direct result of attacks. For more information, Sophie's medical records. Gift with Alicorns: The unique Sophie Telepathy allowed him to watch his thoughts about his rarely seen Alicorn, the only creature that can reset time for the Resurrection and bring it safely. And since Sophie was able to communicate with the creature (even Alicorn informed Sophie, Sophie), the Council decided to leave her in Sophie's care, which led Sophie's discovery of newslevin's ability to teleport. Unfortunately, Sophie also followed the instructions of Black Swans and took the newsletters to one of the black swans that Neeseen managed to watch and attack without backing up. The wing was broken during the attack, but Sophie used the irradiation, so that Keefe Sencene and Silvena would take her to the security of Havenfield. And the news of the wounds has completely healed, no relief to everyone. Sophie later convinced Silveny to move to the shelter to protect Silveny and to tie her to the kind of Grapefell. Soon after Sophie, despite their distance, she learned that she could make telepathic contact with the newspaper, which emerged. Neeseens has repeatedly tried to play two Alicra from the temple, and when Sophie found that the newspapers were pregnant (Nerseeens would definitely desperate desperately desperate to capture her), convinced that it was safer to release Alicorny. Get rid of Alicorns so that nobody knows where they are. He promised to contact Greyfell regularly with Greyfell, and Silvena will provide Sophie to follow this promise, but will give them detailed reports about security and wells. When he contacted him, Sophie started to ignore it. And she refused to come to Henfield for a medical examination, which turned out to be some protective instinct against the news that she was pregnant with twins. But when she gave birth prematurely, she called Sophie for help. And Sophie relied on hats, devil shadows, and trolls to save both children (a man named Wynn and a female named Luna) and keep the papers alive. The Alicorns currently live in Havenfield but are free to leave whenever they wish. Sophie remains her contact person. A magnet for trouble: Since arriving in the Lost Cities, Sophie has had many - sometimes tense - interactions with the Council. A three-man committee (Alderman Oralie, Alderman Bronte and Alderman Kenrick) took it up, and Foxfire was given a temporary seat - which he almost lost due to poor performance at several meetings. However, it still retains its position in our prestigious academy. She also faced court charges for improperly bottling Quintessence and bringing a dangerous substance to school, and was serving a sentence "in relation to her kidnapping." Several members of the Council also suspect their own unregistered spell, but no evidence has been found to support these theories. With her abilities restored, Sophie asked the Council for permission to "cure" Alden Wacker's damaged spirit, which proved extremely successful. As a result, he is ordered to heal a former council member (Frantan Piren) in hopes of retrieving a secret kept during his amnesia. Unfortunately, this recovery led to Councilman Kenrick and Fintan's escape with the Hell Everblaze, which destroyed half of Eternity. And when Sophie was at Kenric's plantation, she tried to read King Dimitar's mind (apparently he thought he was a suspect) and almost sent her to a labor camp for being annoyed with the treaty between Elvin and Wrath. However, the ultimate punishment was left to the council, with council members voting to have her abilities reduced by a prototype limiter created by Dex Dizzne. The device seemed to make Sophie uncomfortable. At the same time, limiting its power. And Sophie cooperated with punishment until she "lost" her talent limiter because of dubious circumstances, just before illegal teleportation to the world of people. Shortly afterwards, she and all her friends escaped from the missing cities, hiding with the Black Swan until they were caught while trying to save the prentiss endall from exile. During the conflict, Sophie revealed that she had an advisor, Kenrick, and agreed to formally exile and visit Exillium, negotiating the treaty on freedom for herself and her friends. The role of his group in finding medicine for the dwarf plague was provided by citizenship and permission by Foxfire. Sophie also convinced the advice to release the prentis from exile and healed the mind of the prentis, but she was unable to remember any memories. He was also chosen to participate in the renegotiations of the gigantic Loan's Contract, and his warnings during the attack on an invisible castle saved many human beings, including advisers. Despite this, his relations with the Council remained tense. Sofia often questions her authority and refuses to comply with their rules, especially after Vesper catches its human parents. The desperate rescue operation of Mrs. Foster led to the dissolution of one of the most dangerous secrets of missing cities, and she is still in favor of disclosing this information, despite the potential chaos. He and his friends also became the "face" of the revolution, and for saving the Atlantis from the flood and for opposing the attack of hidden trolls during the last festival of heaven. With the growing support of Sophie, the council decided to cooperate with them and appointed Sophie and several of her friends on noble regents, creating a brave commandment, which was entrusted with the leadership of Sophie. The team was sent to Loamnort to negotiate with the King of Enki, but the results were mixed - although since then it was revealed that King Enki was a traitor, it is possible that failure was the fault of the Valiant team. At the time of writing this text, the council remains involved in the project, but only time will show whether it really succeeds or whether Sophie will return to the path of disobedience and rebellion and will go to exile. Dead but not dying: Sophie was kidnapped by the invisible with her best friend (Dex Dizzy). But heAt first it seemed like a tragic accident. In their last known position and salvaging the ocean base's evidence plot, the council believed that both Sophie and Dex were pulling a flood wave. Since there was no evidence to suggest any alternative, both Sophie and Dex were "dead". They were planted early. "Too much protection: Sophie escaped from those who were captured and returned to the lost cities, the council contacted Queen Hylda and asked Sophie to provide a Goblin to protect her. Queen Hilda has appointed one of her best fighters (protecting Sophie) and takes her job very seriously. Sandora's motto seems to be "I'll go where you are" and he does his best to never leave Sophie. He was also reported to have hidden the audience in his clothes if he was kidnapped or tried to elope. And while Sophie didn't always want to follow 1.80 Goblin (especially because of the "never oke" most of the "research"), she and the deal could still create a unique group, Friendship. In fact, when the covenant thought that after the event he saw as "Sophie's failure" in one of the last, not brute attacks. Sophie asked to stay with him and even in the details of the body, so that the covenant would feel more secure. Protection level. On the contrary, Sandor surprised everyone by choosing a multimedia method, Sophie Orc protection (Botros), dwarf protection (Fluori), dwarf protection and troping protection (Tarina). (Some dramatic trolls and dwarf worlds, and one of Sophie's friends who need protection, their details now only come down to Covenant and Flory.) This was the image when the entire security team was brought together and almost inspired, on road. All intelligent species have indeed found a way to work together to prove that our world is much stronger. Log Pentl Nexus and Events: When I first brought Sophie the Lost Cities was given the old port of Fitz Wacker and considered it the main port. This was even when Nesen removed his first pendant from the registry (somewhat successfully trying to "fake" his death). Following Sophie's escape and recovery, a restored roster pendant with enhanced security was provided to prevent her from being lost or removed, although the Aldens Wakers were able to intervene before Sophie escaped the Missing Cities and joined the Black Swan. When the council canceled her banishment, she was given a third pendant and it appears to have continued (but sometimes the feeding seems to stop). Della Wacker also gave Sophie a new bond after her kidnapping, which Sophie ordered her to wear despite saving up, it was a strong precaution after Sophie almost disappeared. Due to other issues, Sophie was given a second connection on her other wrist, but neither was needed when her ability recovered. She deleted Alden Wacker before Sophia joined the Black Swan so no one could track her whereabouts. Invisible Man: If school gossip is to be believed, Sophie "loved" or dated (or may date) many different geeks, but none of them have been confirmed. It is confirmed that Sophie tried to register for the match (according to the Matchmaker report), but the system denied his request. In the absence of data on its genetic background, this cannot be safely matched as there is an excessive risk that it can be matched to a biological relative. The Council recently completed a second investigation into the identity of her genetic parents (besides Sophie first arriving in the Lost Cities) and found nothing. So unless Sophie's biological parents are discovered or she reveals her identity, her status will remain unsurpassed. "Increase Oblivion": Granted, there's little relevance to this question, but considering how often the term is used (especially by Keef Sencene's Ogre Bodyguard), it seems like a brief mention. Theories say that what this sentence means is a sort of misunderstanding of Sophie when it comes to the feelings of others and their own. This makes me wonder why Black Swan hasn't changed his empathy. The topic is also unknown. Final note: "FakePerhaps still found - Sophie's pendant - both to protect her and to hide the activity she was involved in. For this reason and many others, the council remains divided over Sophie's trustworthiness. Sophie Elizabeth Foster's Open Medical File: Everglen Ambulance Call Details: I was rushing to see if Alden had been found hiding in the Forbidden Cities - and I admit, part of me wondered if this was some kind of joke. But I just met a girl with brown eyes and elven DNA. Symptoms/Injuries: Bad kid. I can't imagine leaving it for the rest of my life! She looked pretty cool though. And she was surprisingly healthy considering all the chemicals she grew up with, but she needs serious detox treatment. Healing: I gave him what I had brought and made a list of potions that can be obtained from slurps and burps. He also advised him to drink two yellowish bottles every day. Notes: I have to visit her in a few weeks and she doesn't seem happy. I can't fault it, given what I know of human medicine. But I hope I can prove that things are different here. Incident: First visit to the treatment center. Details: Sophie's first foray into alchemy seems to have been an adventure. (I'm sorry I didn't see the explosion!) Symptoms/Injuries: A rather nasty acid burn on my wrist. Treatment: I tried my favorite balm and it worked really well. I also checked Sophie's detox progress and her cells seem much happier. Notes: I'm starting to think I'm going to see a lot of this kid, which is going to be hard because Sophie is always scared of me. Keefe has pulled it off this time. Incident: Second visit to the treatment center. Long story short: During the Ultimate slotting championship, things go awry and Sofia (and Fitz) fly backwards across the room and crash into a wall. Symptoms/Injuries: Nothing serious, which is surprising since Sophie was unconscious when she arrived. I'm sure she'll be sick tomorrow. Treatment: Fresh and pain-relieving compress - rest the rest of the day. Notes: I don't think Sofia has the slightest idea of her power. Looks like she had some intelligence today - and if I'm right, I bet that's just the beginning of what she's capable of. Incident: Emergency call to 911 in Manglaide. Details: I had just set myself up when SophiaSo I hurt the light of the star for my space mission. (Always adventure with this girl! It looked very painful. I'm happy to postpone your fears and celebrate me. Treatment: I started with painkillers and the most powerful fuel solim mixed with the youth gene. But the skin still looked green, so I went home to make it a little more excessive. (I was thinking of making sure that I could not get hurt again. It wasn't strange, I didn't feel cold. And I never saw the light and I didn't listen to the renewal. Sophie came soon (I don't think your friends want to have her to see her to see her again) and her hands looked flawless! He never healed the allergies, so I left the potion to symbolize "Pto". Fortunately, he worked and melted Sophie and his house to rest. He wasn't close. Bullhorn, when he puts fitz and always shouted his head when I passed over his chest. Fill with the example. Symptoms/injuries: Lower Burns (good - Sophie.I know that what he did was illegal, but it was also incredibly bold. It seems that she was also right, and the lights were eternal. Closed file. The patient is dead. Shannon Messenger / Books for children / Young people votes 4 out of 5 / based on 32 votes
